CLUB ♦ LORENTE

Club Lorente is a new system for creating custom promotional products and executive gifts that frees you from minimum orders and long production times.

HOW IT WORKS:

We create a custom 1" and 2" medallion with your art or art that we will happily create for you. Once created, we keep your medallions stocked in our facility. Then, you can order any of the products in our Club Lorente line and they will be shipped out to you within 24 to 48 hours of the time you place your order.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS?

- No minimum orders of any kind, so you can include customized executive gifts on any budget.
- Once you become a Club Member your orders can ship in 24-48 hours which ends the stress that comes with last-minute planning.
- Once you pay your membership fee there are no other hidden fees.
- A stunningly beautiful and high-class line of executive gifts, all customized to your liking, and all at wholesale prices.
- In short – Club Lorente grants you the flexibility and freedom to obtain precisely the custom gifts you need, when you need them, and at a price that will make you, your organization and your event shine!

To help you better understand the terminology used in our catalog, we present brief descriptions of some of the manufacturing processes used in our line and the differences among them.

DIE CASTING

The Die Casting process is the most modern of the various metallurgical processes. It begins in our tool room with the fabrication of a steel mold. The design of your product is carved into the steel by our artists into what is called a cavity. The mold is composed of two halves. The front of the product is carved in one half of the mold and the back into the other. These two mold halves have to match perfectly in order to achieve the desired result. Once the cavities are completed, the mold is heat treated in a high temperature oven to give it added hardness and durability. The mold is then placed in one of our state of the art automatic die casting machines. The machine has a furnace incorporated that melts the metal (zinc) at a temperature of 750 degrees. Once the settings in the machine are programmed, it cycles automatically. A cycle consists of the machine clamping both halves of the mold together, injecting the metal into the mold at high pressure (1100 psi), chilling the mold, opening both halves and ejecting the cast product from the cavity. A good automatic machine performs 500 to 600 cycles per hour practically unattended. The pieces are then deburred, electroplated and colorfilled if necessary. Because of the high production rate of the die casting equipment, this process is ideal for large quantity orders where price is an important consideration. Die casting is our primary production process, offering great metal parts with high detail and durability.

DIE STRIKING

Die Striking is the grandfather of metallurgical processes. Even though it has been utilized for thousands of years, it is as current today as ever. Like in die casting, it begins with a cavity carved in a steel die by our fine artisans. The die is also heat treated for strength. Unlike in die casting, the metal used (brass) is not in molten form. It arrives at our plant in the form of sheet stock. The material is then cut in the shape of the product to be produced with a trim tool. For example, to produce

1 1/2" coins, a same size trim tool cuts out the 1 1/2" circles. These are called blanks. These blanks are then placed one by one on the cavity of the die and with the aid of a high tonnage hydraulic press they are compressed into the cavity, thus acquiring every detail that was cut into the die. After striking, the blanks are again passed through the trim tool in order to remove the excess material that has spread beyond the original shape of the blank. If the product being produced has substantial relief, these operations are repeated until the deepest details are present on the piece. The result is unmatched detail and surface finish. Because of its high level of quality, this process is also used with precious metals.

SOFT ENAMEL

The Soft Enamel process is the most popular way of producing emblematic jewelry. It begins with a die struck brass emblem that is hand polished and electroplated in gold, silver, etc. The colors are applied with a paint gun. A stencil is prepared and used for each color. The stencil is placed on the emblem allowing the color in the gun to adhere only to the areas desired. On multi color emblems the process is repeated with a different stencil for each color. The emblems are then baked in an oven to give the enamels strength and scratch resistance. For added protection, a clear liquid epoxy resin may be applied. The resin cures in the shape of a crystal clear dome.

Economy soft enamel is the way to go for large quantity orders on a budget. The process is identical to soft enamel except for the following differences: 1) Steel is used instead of brass. 2) The emblems are not hand polished prior to plating. The result is 90% of the quality for about half the price. Not a bad deal!

CLOISONNE

Cloisonne, also called Hard Enamel, is definitely a step above soft enamel. The emblems are die struck of the finest brass. Unlike soft enamel, the colors are applied before the finish. Instead of paint, powdered glass is applied by hand to the various areas that require it. The emblems are then inserted in a kiln oven at a very high temperature (1300 degrees). The powdered glass melts. After air cooling, the front of the emblems are ground flat. The items are then hand polished and electroplated using the best gold or silver. The end result is the characteristic look of cloisonne: The metal detail and the colors are exactly the same level and perfectly flat. In recent years, high quality resins have been made available that produce the exact results as the powdered glass but with even greater durability and no breakage. These resins have the added advantage of allowing PMS color matching. Powdered glass is only available in a limited amount of colors. Because of this, we use both materials, applying one or the other depending on the characteristics of the job.

LASER CLOISONNE

Laser Cloisonne adds laser printing to the high quality of our cloisonne process. The cloisonne process is applied as described above, to be then followed by printing one or more colors on the finished cloisonne surface. This allows for small color lettering and fine color details which are not possible with cloisonne alone. The printed inks are then fired in a high temperature oven to achieve lasting quality.
